Chapter 1 by Narcissistic Prince

"Lie still. I'll be right back."

The grim look on their faces hinted to their own disbelief. He got up slowly leaving the two children, one twelve the other seven, huddled in the corner. He stepped out into the stairwell weary of what may lie beyond its steps.

Nothing, it was clear; he sighed in relief and returned to the two children. They smiled relieved as well to see him return so soon and rose to meet him and prepared to depart.

"We have to go now."

Chapter 2 by Nate

Upon his request of departure, they all made their way to the door. Wary of what may be lurking in the hall, they glanced around and walked slowly to avoid the creaking of the old wood flooring. As they made their way to the door a nearby gun shot rang out. They froze in panic. The father, signaling for the children to stay low, crept forward to glance out the doorway and as he stuck his face out another gunshot was fired, grazing his face. He fell backwards, he struggled to get back up and started to crawl at an increased speed.

Chapter 3 by S

The children cried and cried. They didn't know what to do. Their father was the only one who took care of them. Who would take care of them now? As the children were crying a dark shadow lurked behind a corner. He spied on the children intently. He didn't know what these creatures were. He crept closer to investigate.
